Roblox is an online virtual world platform for users to create their own games. The platform was co-created in 2004 by David Baszucki and Erik Cassel. It was launched on January 15, 2006. Roblox's platform is created and developed in the programming language Lua. Users can invite others to play their games, and then they can play them on Roblox's website. As of November 2019, the platform hosts tens of millions of user-created games. Roblox is operated and owned by Roblox Corporation, a privately held company with headquarters in San Diego, California. Roblox Corporation was founded in December 2005, with its first offices in Irvine, California. It was initially funded by Peter Levin, Jeffrey Loo, and Kris Wirtz, and was backed by prominent venture capital firms Redpoint and CB Insights.

Roblox was a $200 million dollar enterprise by January 2013, but it was profitable as early as April 2013. It has raised at least $83 million in venture capital funding and has sold $400 million of its Robux virtual currency. As of 2018, Roblox is the sixth most popular social networking site in the United States, with 27.3% market share. As of 2020, Roblox has over 164 million monthly active users, including more than half of all American children under 16. Roblox has more than 823,000 user-made games as of March 2019, and over 150,000 player accounts. Roblox has over 38 billion game minutes played each month. Roblox appears to have the most revenue of any platform on Tencent's OSMap platform. Its main source of revenue is Robux, which is also the currency used to play and make content on other Tencent games such as Arena of Valor and Decision. Robux have been described as a "relatively popular virtual currency on Roblox" by Engadget and Digital Trends. Robux are usually purchased with real-world money as part of a "loot box", and as of December 2019, their price was between about 200 and 375 USD. Due to its usage of loot boxes, some have described Robux as a possible form of gambling, which is illegal in some countries. Digital Trends has described Robux as an "immature form of virtual currency" that is popular with children, stating that "kids are essentially spending whole afternoons developing games solely to collect goldfish on the cheap".
