For a complete gameplay guide, see:.The specification relates to an accessory for a wireless communication device, and more particularly to, for example, an accessory for a wireless communication device that may be carried around the waist of a user. Wireless communication devices are becoming increasingly portable and more and more people are carrying wireless communication devices with them. These wireless communication devices may be a smart phone, cellular phone, wireless personal digital assistant, a personal digital assistant (PDA), or some other type of portable communication device. Many users of wireless communication devices find that they prefer carrying their wireless communication device in a small, convenient package. For example, wireless communication devices may be worn as earbud devices (e.g., wired earphones or earbuds), smart watches, and/or other types of devices. Many users of wireless communication devices find it easier to carry and use a wireless communication device when the user has the wireless communication device in a position that is readily accessible. For example, a wireless communication device may be carried in a pocket, on a belt or a strap, in a bag, or in the user's hand. However, when a wireless communication device is carried in an awkward position, it is easier for the user to misplace the wireless communication device. Also, when a wireless communication device is carried in an awkward position, it can

The 2 lists are of the same field of a database? My field is called Product and its possible values is Desserts, Drinks, Sweets. The values inside the list is "Desserts", "Drinks", and "Sweets". Any help would be appreciated, thanks. A: Assuming the data in your 2 lists are actually a bit more than just the product choices, you could do something like: `boolean equals = productList1.equals(productList2) || productList1.containsAll(productList2) || productList2.containsAll(productList1);` Vote Now: 'How can I fight for peace and dignity?' The latest in the African Journalism Initiative's voting campaign to gauge public attitudes and opinions to a wide range of questions. Since its inception in June 2001, the African Journalism Initiative (AJI) has sought the opinions of Kenyan citizens to gauge public attitudes towards general social, economic and environmental issues, political, ethnic and religious issues, freedom of the press, and media access to information. The AFI-Kenya has been funded by USAID and Inter Radio.
