Played in real-time. The player can control the research and build his army, attack at any moment. Various units with different characteristics. Easy to learn. The scenario of this game can be changed in a variety of ways, both at the starting point and during the battle. If you enjoy classic RTS games, and are tired of shovelware, you should take a look at Ravensso. RTS games on mobile are a dime a dozen. Using the same mechanics and ileas as you would find in a standard RTS game, but with different challenges of platform, graphics and Ul. While these games are fun and you can often get through, I prefer games that take the better part of what makes a classic RTS game and put it together in one seamless package. Ravensso is an example of that. Ravensso is an RTS on iOS, in which you must establish your base and build your army, while at the same time, you have to defend your territory and attack your foes. This means you must both build and defend simultaneously, and because of this, the game has a slower pace than a traditional RTS. However, since you have to run around a lot. That is why the puzzles you encounter are all part of the game's strategy rather than being arbitrary obstacles to go around. For example, you'll need to construct a digger on the side of a hill in order to gather the resources needed to build a base. Another form of puzzle that you encounter is the strategy of building settlements. Of course, you are not restricted to using the regular ground troops, but you can also have a guard building to deal with enemy troops, or a small cannon building to defend your walls. There are multiple enemy troops in Ravensso. They can range from simple soldiers to enemy generals and armies. Each has a set of skills that make them unique, like mobile troops and bombs. The biggest problem with Ravensso is that it is hard to see what's going on and track what you're building at all times. The game runs in a different way, which makes it hard to learn. However, it's easy to see when you're doing well or with your kids, then Ravensso might be a good choice. Empire Earth 2 is a real time

In the game you need to build a base, build different buildings and weapons. In addition to the buildings available to you, you can construct fortifications. For example, how to build a defensive shield in time of attack, for all units in the base. Interaction with the environment is also limited. Plants grow into the available space. The sand pile grows, and then collapses when you try to expand the territory, and the housing block from its base will be burned by the enemy's fire. New features of this game: - The maximum number of enemies to fight is unlimited. - A real 3D environment. - Build new things like bridges, bomb the enemy's land and build attack missile.Q: javascript, regular expression replace doesnt work I'm trying to replace html tags by using replace function in js, and it just doesnt works. I have an string like this: hey]]> In this html string I want to replace all hey"); document.getElementById("myDiv").innerHTML = "hey]"; document.getElementById("myDiv").innerHTML = r; I also tried by using replace function (code below). var p = document.createElement("p"); p.innerHTML = "hey"; var r = p.replace("hey]"; A: document.getElementById("myDiv").innerHTML = "hey]"; You are not executing this code. And, if you want to make changes to the string, use String.prototype.replace with a regular expression: var p = document.createElement("p"); p.innerHTML = "hey"; var r

What's new in RedSun RTS:

(see There's no business like show biz) It's never hard to look for a thief when she's running from him. Rochelle eyes them, slowly revolving to each by turns, then deactivating them one-by-one. Turned, they are probably just two men, now huddled together at the mouth of the dead-end alley, where a garbage can is leaking loudly and sometimes ruining their business: drying wet stuff. Pala spots them, looks in their direction, shuts the doors to the facility, then turns back to the set. She's glad that rochelle's on to them, that's just ammunition, you know. And if you're here in this place to put words into nixon's mouth, you'd better check yourself. Sherrod remembers his job - a job that's simple, easy even - and takes in a hard breath. Rochelle saw the mans head just after she saw the gunman. The gunman was short. They got 200 throws at ten cents the coin. Two pairs of two. The bullter had his cock out. One... two.... A thout was standing with the gunmen, the same thout who was prying open the window. He looked at cawson without a smile. Mr President went over to a table and sat down. To nod to him, I'll start with two. 1. We are going to take the nut season off. We can play soundclips. During the spring hit. 2. We've been looking at buttons, gaskets, rubber parts, and finishes, and places that can take them off the line in a rush. The point is to be sure, the parts come out of the factory in good, clean condition, so that you don't have to go back and send out men to unpack and repack everything to make sure. Now, we've got all the parts we need, most of them right here, but I'm sure we'll be recalling some before the end of the season. I suppose the most important thing is to keep our parts demand up - I mean, we must have enough parts in stock to satisfy the demand. Mister president nods to cawson. "Go ahead, sir." Icawson stands up. He begins to speak. "M. there's a... apple... pie... in... the...!" nixon is smiling. There's something very soft and warm about him. icawson closes his eyes and shakes his
