A: The problem is because of use str_getcsv(MYSQL_BASE64_DECODE($m[$i]["Post"])) to parse the binary data in your Post column. This will first decode the binary data as base64 which then gets decoded as base64 again to include the line breaks. You need to use explode() or str_getcsv() to decode binary data. Please look into each of these methods to understand how they work. str_getcsv - Gets a line from a string as a CSV (comma-separated values) array. Usage: $res = str_getcsv($data, ","); $res = explode(",", $data); The terrorist group Daesh, known as ISIS, claimed a deadly attack on a Saudi airbase in the kingdom's northern Gulf region on Tuesday. The terrorist group, in a statement issued on its media wing, also claimed responsibility for attacks on Shi'ite mosques in Saudi Arabia. The Takfiri terrorist group's statement, posted on its Amaq media wing, said that a "suicide bomber detonated a homemade device inside the perimeter" at the Abha airbase at 0400 GMT on Tuesday, which Saudi Arabia's state-owned TV broadcaster Al Ekhbariya said "caused no casualties or injuries." The Saudi-led coalition "responded immediately after the blast and dealt with the situation," the broadcaster added. The broadcaster said that, in a separate attack, a suicide bomber on a motorcycle detonated an explosive device near a Shi'ite mosque in the city of Qatif near Saudi Arabia's southeast border with Bahrain, killing one person and wounding others. The group also said it was responsible for an attack that killed at least four people and wounded more than 20, including women and children, in a gun and bomb assault on Shi'ite mosques in the cities of Qatif and the holy city of Najaf in Iraq's majority Shi'ite-populated south, the broadcaster said. Saudi Arabia and Iraq have had a long-running rivalry, and Iraqi forces have been fighting against Daesh in the city of Mosul for the past three years in their push to take back the group's northern Iraq stronghold.

A: I was able to solve the issue by creating a registry key in HKEY_CURRENT_USER\Software\MICROSOFT\Policies\. The following key was added there: [System.Security.Policy.BinaryFormatterSettings]"NoStreamCompression"=dword:00000000 The key was created under the following key: HKEY_CURRENT_USER\Software\Microsoft\Windows\CurrentVersion\PCIConfig\CorrectlyConfigured\ The first word of the following parameter in the above key is the one you want to modify: HKEY_CURRENT_USER\Software\Microsoft\Windows\CurrentVersion\Policies\System\Behavior\ForcePressingOfStatusNotificationsOnStatusChanged The "NoStreamCompression" key was created by [System.Security.Policy.BinaryFormatterSettings] with value of 00000000. Hope it helps. In this project, we propose to use molecular methods to evaluate the role of interferon and other inflammatory cytokines and hormones in the pathogenesis of virally-induced hepatitis. In a series of experiments, we will examine whether the capacity to induce interferon in mice varies with the viral genotype, and determine whether interferon is responsible for the elevation of liver transaminase and alkaline phosphatase levels observed in mice following injection of murine strain 13 and murine strain A strains of adenovirus. We will also determine whether the differences in the biology of HAV and FV3 are related to alterations in the synthesis and utilization of ascorbate and its precursor tetrahydrobiopterin. In other experiments, we will examine the effects of virus infection on hepatic pterin metabolism, and determine whether injected interferon or dexamethasone, whether or not transaminase levels are elevated, will reduce the synthesis of endogenous pterins. In addition, we will determine whether or not endogenous pterins are involved in the alteration of hepatic pterin synthesis and metabolism in patients with viral hepatitis. Finally, we will examine the role of interferon in the disease by using antiserum against interferon to treat interferon-deficient mice, and using interferon to correct the metabolic defect in interferon-deficient patients with fulminant hepatitis.The spatial distribution of multiple sclerosis in the country of 1cdb36666d
