Follow us if you want to: The long term goal of this project is to elucidate the molecular mechanisms of b-catenin/Tcf gene regulation in the formation and progression of colon carcinoma. Recently we have cloned several target genes of Tcf/Wnt that mediate tumor cell growth and invasiveness in colon and other epithelial cells. Among these genes are Axin2, which is a novel effector of Tcf-4; specifically it inhibits GSK-3b and thereby stabilizes b-catenin, and Lgr-5, which encodes a new Wnt receptor that mediates cancer cell invasiveness and proliferation. The in vivo role of these target genes in carcinoma formation and progression is currently unknown. Our preliminary data indicate that A) Tcf-4/Wnt signals play a role in colonic carcinoma formation in vivo and that this tumor promoting role is highly dependent upon gene dosage and cellular context, and B) the function of Axin2 is to inhibit gastrin (Gsr) production and thereby to inhibit Gsr signaling. This proposal tests the hypothesis that the Axin2 and Lgr-5 genes control the formation and progression of colon carcinoma. This hypothesis is based upon the following observations: 1) colon carcinomas in several animal models exhibit enhanced expression of Axin2 and Lgr5; 2) expression of both genes is closely correlated with enhanced Gsr-mediated signaling; 3) Axin2 and Lgr-5 are human tumor markers, and 4) Tcf-4 over-expressing mouse colonic cells exhibit enhanced Gsr-mediated signaling and tumor formation. Our Specific Aims are: 1) To determine the relevance of A) Axin2, B) Tcf-4, C) Lgr-5 in

I have this function: setTimezone(new DateTimeZone('Europe/Amsterdam')); return $date->format('Y'); } ?> But when i echo out $date->format('Y') I get the result 1970. What am i doing wrong? A: $d represents your input, and is not a date object. You need to get the date from a date object:
date_default_timezone_set('Europe/Amsterdam'); function get_date($d) { $date = new DateTime($d); $date->setTimezone(new DateTimeZone('Europe/Amsterdam')); return $date->format('Y'); } Or, if you are creating the date in your code, maybe you want to use DateTime::createFromFormat or DateTime::createFromFormatDateFunction A: date is a string. You need to use DateTime. Try this $date = new DateTime($d); return $date->format('Y'); A: you need to create a date object as mentioned in the date_default_timezone_set(). It's better to use date() instead of new DateTime($d) e79caf774b
