Vonlonsky Station Vonlonsky Station () is a railway station in Vladiysky District of Novosibirsk Oblast, Russia, located on the Tobol River. It is on the Trans-Siberian Railway, serving as a northern terminus of the Novosibirsk-Barguzin section. It was built in 1924, as a replacement for the original Vorony Station, which was destroyed in the First World War. The new Vorony Station was built on an island with a wooden railway bridge. Between the two stations a single track line long was laid on two pillars. Since the summer of 2008, the station is the starting point for a proposed line to the town of Kuybyshev, in what was historically known as the Kuybyshev Guberniya. The Government of Novosibirsk Oblast decided in 2007 that the project is feasible and started discussing its details. Construction of a long line is expected to start in 2012, with the line opening in 2016. The station is located 2.1 km north of the city of Novosibirsk and the Novosibirsk Central Bus Station. The present study investigated the effects of social isolation (SI) on subsequent acute stress-induced changes in the extracellular concentrations of serotonin (5-HT), its metabolite 5-hydroxyindoleacetic acid (5-HIAA), and corticosterone (CORT) in the rat hypothalamic paraventricular nucleus (PVN), amygdala and hippocampus. The present study also investigated the effects of acute stress on the preference for social interaction in isolated and group-housed rats. Male Long-Evans rats were randomly assigned to one of the following four groups (n=7-8/group): (1) SI (24h/day), (2) SI for 3 weeks (12h/day), (3) SI for 6 weeks (12h/day) or (4) SI (12h/day). The preference for social interaction was measured in all groups at baseline, after 3 weeks or 6 weeks of SI and after acute restraint stress (1h). The concentration of CORT, 5-HT and 5-HIAA were measured in samples of the PVN, amygdala and hippocampus 30 min following acute restraint stress. The duration of SI differentially influenced the effects of acute stress on the plasma CORT and 5-HT concentrations. SI for 3 weeks resulted in transient decreases in the extracellular concentration of 5-HT in the amygdala and hippocampus, compared to basal concentrations, whereas SI for 6 weeks resulted in sustained decreases in the extracellular concentration of 5-HT in the amygdala. In contrast, SI for 6 weeks had no effect on the concentration of 5-HIAA in the amygdala or PVN. Neither the SI protocol nor acute stress differentially altered the preference for social interaction in SI or group-housed animals. The present data show that social isolation induces differential alterations in the effects of acute stress on the extracellular concentrations of
