It is also the waste of the food industry, and a large percentage of its total volume is produced annually. Although sewage sludge is mainly a problem for the developed countries, the majority of the global demand for sludge (and also energy) comes from the developing world. In addition, the construction of sewer and sanitation systems is among the fastest growing sectors in global energy demand. Global demand is expected to more than double by 2030 and to continue growing rapidly thereafter. While sludge can be used for agricultural purposes and energy generation, the high organic content of sludge makes it unsuitable for agriculture, hence for direct use as food. Q: excel formulas and dates I have dates in column A and corresponding percentages in column B, and I want to sum the percentages for each date. What is the formula to do that? A: Just add up the percentage in column B: =SUM(B:B) If you would rather have the sums in different columns, write =SUM(B2:B10) If you want to see the actual formulas used to calculate the percentages, use the Object -> View tab when editing the cells, and then click the "Formula" button. As for why it's not working in the first place, you cannot use Sum() or other built in functions like that without writing your own macro or using VBA. Q: Getting json data from different API request I am currently building a messaging app using Websockets. I have everything working but now I want to be able to pull the details of the message via an API request. I have recently started learning about JSON and how it works. I am having trouble with pulling the data from the API in the format of JSON. This is what I have so far. The data is sent to my PORT 8080 from my codepen.io server. However, I believe it is not JSON formatted as I am still not getting the JSON response in my postman request. First Code let socket = new WebSocket("ws://2g5l4rm0.ngrok.io/ws"); socket.onmessage = function(event) { console.log(event.data); console.log(event.data.from); console.log(event.data.message); }; socket.onopen = function(event) { socket.send(`Hello from WebSocket ?`); }; API Request - I want to be able to get the data from this API call so I can insert the data into my postman request.
