In KILLING FLOOR 2, players descend into continental Europe where the outbreak caused by Horzine Biotechs failed experiment has quickly spread and gained unstoppable momentum, essentially paralyzing the European Union Just one month after the events in the original KILLING FLOOR, the specimen clones are everywhere and civilization is in disarray; communications have failed, governments have collapsed, and military forces have been systematically eradicated. The people of Europe know survival and self-preservation too well and lucky survivors have gone into hiding. the new feature to come in the upcoming killing floor 2 dlc will be the customisation of specialized rifle. the customization options for this weapon are more limited in the dlc than in the base game, but with the dlc you can also apply functional accessories. you must attach the idownloaderservice implementation to the rpcs3 client using the attachservice() method. for more information on how rpcs3 implements the idownloaderclient interface, see rpcs3_user_guide: recipient . you can now receive the download progress, as well as upload completion, at any time using rpcs3. this can be done by calling getdownloadprogress() and getuploadprogress() and optionally monitoring the following system services: the getdownloadprogress() and getuploadprogress() methods will return a downloadprogress value on success. the status field indicates the status of the rpcs3 download and will be one of the following values: downloading can be prevented, and the download process restarted, by calling disconnect() on the rpcs3 client and then calling startdownload(). don't forget to call connect() again before calling getuploadprogress(). if you enable logging for receivedownloadprogress() in the rpcs3 config file you will see various messages as the download is executed. unfortunately we cannot give any good estimates about the download time, but this will normally be quite quick. this is because all of the data for a game is cached already on your hard drive before starting the download. 5ec8ef588b
