quick calculators have just gotten much more convenient. now you can choose to make all of the calculations in the chart calculator (or in the big table) for a 12-hour period. simply set the time and date. you can select two or more time periods, or a single date with a range. you can then copy, paste or export the chart, the time period, or a particular calculation. if you want to keep the time period free-form, but keep the cardinal and zodiacal houses, and the rulers there, you can move them around within the time period. you can make a list of charts to be calculated or a list of the time periods. calculations also work within the dynamic list, including specific coordinates within a range. solar fire can also calculate natal, solar returns, lunar returns, midheaven, and much more. repeating graphs are also easier to create. now you can simply double-click on any axis to place a repeater. the best part is that you can move the axis and its repeater around at will and create multiple repeaters. there is a new chart display in which you can place the repeaters and use any chart option or style of the chart. multiple point options have become much more flexible. you can now select up to 4 points in your chart. the chart&rsquot;s total cost is reduced slightly, but the more points you have the more flexible you are. the 5th axis is now colorized for charts with 4 or more points. you can also check out our new sparclock. you can shift any date in the chart using the mouse or can change the form and enter the date, then snap it in place.
