A resolution reduction method for microscopy with an anamorphic system is discussed on the basis of the gradient distribution of multiple fluorescent microspheres and the measured intensity distribution of fluorescent microspheres. We use a small amount of fluorescent microspheres as a multiple light source with different fluorescent intensities. We also determine the profiles of fluorescent intensity of the microspheres by scanning microscopy; the resolution of an image of the fluorescent intensity is changed during scanning. Finally, we make a resolution comparison between the original image of the microspheres and the reconstructed image based on the image-constructed light. Our results show that the resolution reduced images of microspheres have better contrast than the original images.# Copyright 2018 The Amber Authors. # # Licensed under the Apache License, Version 2.0 (the "License"); # you may not use this file except in compliance with the License. # You may obtain a copy of the License at # # # # Unless required by applicable law or agreed to in writing, software # distributed under the License is distributed on an "AS IS" BASIS, # WITHOUT WARRANTIES OR CONDITIONS OF ANY KIND, either express or implied. # See the License for the specific language governing permissions and # limitations under the License. set(SOURCES Main.cpp) add_executable(AMBER_SIM ${SOURCES}) if(VARIABILITY_FIND_FROM_BASE) find_package(Variability REQUIRED) endif() if (NOT ${VARIABILITY_FIND_FROM_BASE} STREQUAL "IMPORTED") target_compile_definitions(AMBER_SIM PRIVATE VARIABILITY_FIND_FROM_B
